Submitting a paper to Teaching in Higher Education

The instructions below are specifically directed at authors who wish to submit a manuscript to Teaching in Higher Education. For information about writing an article, preparing your manuscript and general guidance for authors, please visit the Author Services section of our website (http://journalauthors.tandf.co.uk). Aims and scope

Teaching in Higher Education is an international, peer-reviewed journal. The journal addresses the roles of teaching, learning and the curriculum in higher education in order to explore and clarify the intellectual challenges which they present. The journal is interdisciplinary and aims to open up discussion across subject areas by involving all those who share an enthusiasm for learning and teaching. In particular the journal will:
- critically examine the values and presuppositions underpinning teaching
- identify new agendas for research
- introduce comparative perspectives and insights drawn from different cultures
- aim to apply and develop sustained reflection, investigation and critique to learning and teaching in higher education
- consider how teaching and research can be brought into closer relationship and how teaching in higher education can itself become a field of research

Preparing and submitting your manuscript

Before preparing your submission, please visit the Teaching in Higher Education homepage at http://www.tandf.co.uk/journals/ or for full instructions for authors, including a complete style guide. Papers for consideration should be submitted via the journal's online submission site at http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/tehe. New authors will be requested to create an account before submitting their manuscript. Online user guides and access to a helpdesk are available on this website.

If online submission is not possible, please send an electronic version on disc or CD-ROM along with three paper copies, together with one set of high quality figures for reproduction, to the address below.
