Information for authors

Human Resource Development International (HRDI) promotes all aspects of practice and research that explore issues of group, individual, group, organizational, learning and performance, wherever they might be located. In adopting this perspective HRDI is committing itself to questioning the divide between practice and theory; between the ‘practitioner’ and the ‘academic’; between traditional and experimental methodological approaches; and between organizational demands and the demands of scholarship. HRDI accepts manuscripts for the following sections:

Peer Reviewed Articles: High quality papers for double-blind peer review. Suggested length: 8000 words.
Perspectives: The Perspectives section is the non-peer-reviewed section of HRDI. Publishing in the Perspectives section provides authors an avenue for communicating their novel research ideas, raising important issues related to HRD research and/or practice, and for starting theoretical debates. Perspectives articles could include:
- Summaries of innovative research projects;
- Reports on research-in-progress;
- Position papers, starting new or revisiting ongoing debates on issues, related to HRD;
- Discussions with HRD academics and practitioners who provide a perspective on the individual’s contribution to the field;
- Biographical/historical reviews;
- Articles about advanced HRD practice;
- Case studies of innovative practices;
- Reviews of recently published books, videos, and software in HRD and related fields;
- Reviews of HRD conferences.

HRDI academics, graduate students, and practitioners in the field are all encouraged to submit manuscripts to the Perspectives section. When preparing manuscripts for the Perspectives section, authors should consider the following differences between the peer-reviewed and non-peer-reviewed sections of HRDI. First, research summaries and reports on research-in-progress, submitted to the Perspectives section, do not need to describe the utilized research methods and procedures at the same level of detail that is expected of submissions to the peer-reviewed section. Second, while providing relevant and accurate citations is as important in the Perspectives section as it is in the peer-reviewed section, long and comprehensive literature reviews are not needed in Perspectives manuscripts. Manuscripts in most Perspectives categories should total 3000–4000 words. Book, video and software reviews are 1000–1500 words; review articles, covering several related books, could be 3000–4000 words long.

Submission of manuscripts

Authors should submit an electronic copy to Rob F. Poul, Tilburg University, PO Box 90153, 5000 LE Tilburg, The Netherlands (e-mail: hrdi@uvt.nl). Please indicate whether your submission is for the refereed section or non-refereed section.

Submission should be in English and typed in double-spacing (including all notes and references). English or American spelling is acceptable provided usage is consistent. Footnotes should be avoided; any notes which do not fit within the body of the text should be placed immediately before the reference list. An abstract of up to 150 words and up to six keywords for the journal’s abstracting services should accompany all refereed papers.

Permission to quote from or reproduce copyright material must be obtained before submission; general acknowledgements should be provided immediately before the Notes section; acknowledgement of figures or photographs (source and copyright) should however be placed under the individual caption.

Submissions should be accompanied by a separate sheet giving a brief autobiographical note for each author, together with details of international and e-mail addresses, telephone and fax numbers. Email: hrdi@uvt.nl

Submissions of a manuscript to HRDI should be expected to imply that it presents original, unpublished work not under consideration elsewhere. By submitting a manuscript, authors agree that the exclusive rights to reproduce and distribute the article have been given to the Publishers.
