The Asia Pacific Journal of Anthropology (TAPJA) is a leading refereed scholarly journal devoted to the anthropological study of Asia and the Pacific. It is jointly published by Anthropology, School of Culture, History and Language, College of Asia and the Pacific and the School of Archaeology and Anthropology, College of Arts and Social Sciences at The Australian National University. The journal publishes research in social and cultural anthropology relating to the Asia Pacific region, including Australia, particularly anthropological and ethnographic papers concerned with contemporary debates in the region.

Information for Authors

The Asia Pacific Journal of Anthropology (TAPJA) provides a forum for the publication of research in all branches of anthropology and the editors welcome the submission of papers. Papers submitted will be reviewed anonymously by outside referees. Submissions should be made online at the Asia Pacific Journal of Anthropology Manuscript Central site, http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rtap.

Papers should not exceed 6,000 words, though longer submissions of outstanding quality will be considered. Papers must include an abstract of no more than 150 words and a list of keywords. Citations, references, etc., should follow the conventions used in this journal: citations in short (Harvard) form; references to include all (but only) works cited in the paper, giving author’s initials and full publication details as below:

Copyright. It is a condition of publication that authors assign copyright or license the publication rights in their articles, including abstracts, to The Australian National University. This enables us to ensure full copyright protection and to disseminate the article, and of course the Journal, to the widest possible readership in print and electronic formats as appropriate. Authors retain many rights under the Taylor & Francis rights policies which can be found at http://journalauthors.tandf.co.uk/preparation/permission.asp. Add your acknowledgements to the typescript, preferably in the form of an Acknowledgements section at the end of the paper. Credit the source and copyright of photographs or figures in the accompanying captions.

Clearing Permissions. As an author, you are required to secure permission if you want to reproduce any figure, table, or extract from the text of another source. This applies to direct reproduction as well as “derivative reproduction” (where you have created a new figure or table which derives substantially from a copyrighted source). For further information and FAQs, please see http://journalauthors.tandf.co.uk/preparation/permission.asp. Add your acknowledgements to the typescript, preferably in the form of an Acknowledgements section at the end of the paper. Credit the source and copyright of photographs or figures in the accompanying captions.

Free article access. As corresponding author, you will receive free access to your article on Taylor & Francis Online. You will be given access to the My authored works section of Taylor & Francis Online, which shows you all your published articles. You can easily view, read, and download your published article from there. In addition, if someone has cited your article, you will be able to see this information. We are committed to promoting and increasing the visibility of your article and have provided this guidance <http://journalauthors.tandf.co.uk/beyondpublication/promotearticle.asp> on how you can help.

Reprints and journal copies. Corresponding authors can receive a complimentary copy of the issue containing their article. Article reprints can be ordered through Rightslink® when you receive your proofs. If you have any queries about reprints, please contact the Taylor & Francis Author Services team at reprints@tandf.co.uk. To order extra copies of the issue containing your article, please contact our Customer Services team at subscriptions@tandf.co.uk.
